

Get Your Elbow Off the Horn : Stories through the Years

Get Your Elbow Off the Horn is a collection of interactions and observations written by Jack R. Gannon, a lifelong advocate for the Deaf community. Warm and amusing, Gannon's stories begin with his rural childhood in the Ozarks and continue through his experiences as a student, educator, coach, husband, parent, and community leader. These vignettes reveal a down-to-earth family man who believed in making a difference one person at a time. Many of his recollections are brief sketches that reveal much about being Deaf--and about being human. From reflecting on the difficult choices parents must make for their children, to recounting awkward communication exchanges, Gannon marries good humor with a poignant advocacy for sign language rights. His stories preserve and share Deaf American life and culture as he experienced it.

Author: Jack R. Gannon

Imprint: Washington, DC: Gallaudet University Press, 2020

Tags: Biography [1]

Catalog Link: Get Your Elbow Off the Horn : Stories through the Years [2]

Source URL: <https://tndeaflibrary.nashville.gov/library/materials/get-your-elbow-off-the-horn-stories-through-the-years>

Links

[1] <https://tndeaflibrary.nashville.gov/material-tags/biography>

[2] <https://catalog.library.nashville.org/Record/CARL0000879765?searchId=50446682&recordIndex=1&page=1>